CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CLOSES DRIVE WITH 809 NEW MEMBERS

GOVERNOR ASKS MATHESON BILL BE AMENDED REQUEST FOR WITHDRAWAL OF MEASURE IS DENIED.

DODGES ISSUE

Executive Will be Obligated to Either Sign or Veto Enforcement Plan.

(By Associated Press.) Madison.—The assembly voted 23 to 31 to lay over until Thursday a resolution from Governor Blaine recalling the Matheson prohibition enforcement bill for purpose of amendment. This will force the governor either to sign or veto the bill before Tuesday when it automatically becomes law without his signature.

Request of Governor Blaine, in a message to both houses of the legislature Friday, that the enforcement bill be withdrawn for amendment was described on the floor by speakers as an attempt to "open up the whole prohibition fight again."

Wallace Ingalls, who voted against the Matheson bill, turned the tide against passage of the resolution which would have brought the measure back, by declaring that it was up to Governor Blaine to either veto or sign the act.

Assemblyman A. E. Matheson, Janesville, author of the proposal, also requested that responsibility be placed on Governor Blaine, who had the bill following favorable action by both houses, and should meet the issue squarely, either signing it, or returning the bill vetoed.

Dual Supports Blaine. Assemblyman J. H. Tiedt, of the assembly, said it was well aware of the fact that the drive controlled both houses, and if the resolution were passed it would give opportunity only to a such amendment as they would offer. He asked that in fairness to the governor, the bill be withdrawn.

The governor requested alterations that would make the proposal conform as nearly as possible with the federal Volstead act. He declared that the Matheson bill was "a piece of legislation that should be made for its enforcement but no unreasonable invasion of the home should be permitted."

Conform to Volstead Act. The governor said that "if I had the power to amend the bill, I would specifically make the act conform to the Volstead act, and I would specifically make the act conform to the Volstead act, and I would specifically make the act conform to the Volstead act."

Wheaton Asks
Sheriff to Give Back His Still

Charging that Sheriff Cash Whipple violated his personal rights and liberty as guaranteed to him under the constitution of the United States and also of this state, Charles Wheaton filed a petition in municipal court Thursday asking that the still confiscated from him on April 20 be returned to him. Following the filing of this petition Judge H. L. Maxfield announced that no action would be taken on it until Wheaton's trial, set for Thursday, but adjourned to June 2.

Wheaton's request is considered one of the most unique ever recorded in municipal court. He declares both his arrest and the seizure of the still in the "Happy Hollow" district, to have been illegal and through his attorney, E. H. Ryan, petitions "for the return of property unlawfully taken."

Had No Authority. He holds that Sheriff Whipple arrested him without warrant or authority and while he was committing no offense and that he unlawfully "seized a cooking vat and warm such as used for distillation of liquors and other distillation purposes." This he holds to be a violation of section 11, article 1, of the state constitution and also of the fourth and amendments to the federal constitution.

The petition after citing the case says, "which procedure is without right or lawful authority and contrary to the letter and spirit of said constitutional provisions above mentioned and in violation of the constitutional rights of your petitioner, secured to your petitioner under said constitutional provisions."

Had Search Warrant. Sheriff Whipple entered the farm where the still was found with a search warrant for corn which had been stolen. Instead of finding the corn he found the still and took it and Wheaton.

The federal amendments referred to by Wheaton are:

No. 5—"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, particularly describing the persons or things to be seized."

No. 6—"No persons shall be deprived of property without due process of law."

BLAINE JOINS IN FIGHT ON CEMENT

Agrees to Illinois Governor's Suggestion for Conference.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Springfield, Ill.—Gov. Small's suggestion of a conference of governors of mid-western states to discuss road building and prices of road material has been approved by John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, to whom the proposition was submitted a few days ago.

The conference was suggested by Gov. Small as the best means of effort to break the backbone of the cement trust, which he declared is charging exorbitant prices for cement. The suggestion was made following Gov. Small's arraignment of A. R. Hirst, Wisconsin highway engineer, for statements said to have been made before the Portland Cement association in Chicago recently.

In reply to Gov. Blaine's request for details on road construction bids and contracts in Illinois, Gov. Small forwarded to the Wisconsin governor amounts of bids opened by Illinois highway officials on Wednesday when bids of $25,856 per mile for an 8 foot road and another bid of $22,307 for a 10 foot road were received. The bids included the cost of cement.

In commenting upon the bids, Gov. Small said: "No reduction in price of cement but a reduction in the cost of other materials and in the cost of construction of the road." Several of the cement companies are joining in the manufacture of cement for their roads was suggested by one of Gov. Small's complaints in discussing the proposed conference.

82 NEW CITIZENS IN ROCK COUNTY

Judge Grimm and U. S. Grant
Final Papers to All but 24 Applicants.

Two German born youths who it is alleged claimed exemption from military service during the world war were refused citizenship papers during the hearings held in the Rock county circuit court Thursday. A total of 82 out of 106 applicants were granted second papers, passing the loyalty tests of the government examiner and Judge George Grimm.

Carl Richard Surand, German, now employed by the Samson in Indiana, was refused despite his plea and claim that he did not claim exemption because of being an alien and claimed his first papers during the latter part of the war. The government examiner offered objections and his case was dismissed until he can convince the naturalization department he offered to serve with the colors.

War Was Loyalty Test

"The war was the test of your loyalty and if you claimed exemption, you have to suffer the consequences," advised the court to Surand. "The records indicate that you did claim exemption when called for the draft and that is what you can prove otherwise."

Kurt Walter Numan, at one time a sales agent, was also refused on the same ground. His case was held open until further consideration and additional proof is submitted.

Law Is Strict

Under the strict law set down by the government, which is declared will remain for all time, any person who claimed exemption from service under the draft because he was an alien, can never obtain citizenship in the United States. As long as he remains a resident of the United States, he is a citizen without a country.

A few cases were continued for additional posting on American government methods.

The aliens who claimed exemption because they were Austrians and Germans missed their mark. Under the rules of the war department, the government would not have taken them in the army even if they did not claim exemption because they were alien enemies, unless they took out citizenship papers while the service.

Those Granted Papers.

Those who were granted papers were: Frank Joseph Wentz, Herman Wilke, Frank Wilke, Fred William Giesse, Fred Wundelich, Paul H. F. Dillingman, August L. Schmeider, Gustav C. # Excelo Cake

Why a two-layer cake is best—double-baking tells

Time after time we baked layer and loaf cakes, then compared them.

Excelo Cakes must be better baked than any others, we had decided. We knew the ingredients were the best on the market. And the mixing and creaming was done by machinery in clean, white kitchens. So it was all a matter of baking.

Under every test, the layer cake was found to be most evenly baked, most palatable, most easily digested. This was because each cake was double-baked. A two-inch thickness is more evenly baked than one that is three or three and one-half. Thus a cake of two layers is flakier, more nearly perfect, than a loaf cake the same size.

Bakers had refused to use this method because of the double cost in the oven. So had they refused to place rich icing on all four sides, on top and between the layers.

But we have baked a rich two-layer iced cake, just as you would make it at home, in a size most convenient to you. Your dessert problem will be solved if you ask your grocer for Excelo Cake today.

WHAT MR. CRAIG SAID.

There was an old lady, so the story goes who demanded always to hear the worst, and was only happy when it was told. It may be feared that several just like her have been living in Janesville of late and when the worst was not forthcoming in regard to the Samson Tractor Company they have been grievously disappointed. Some months ago when the Gazette, chasing down rumors asked Mr. President J. A. Craig about some of them he remarked that the city was filled with "barbershop gossip."

So it seemed and since then there have been hundreds of stories afloat, not one of which had real foundation, not one of which was helpful to either the city or the Samson, all apparently started and kept moving by that small, narrow, mouth-leaking, conversation-making few, who wanted to hear the worst.

Janesville has many large manufacturing industries other than the Samson. One, as was told in the Gazette Thursday, is running under full speed and needs additional help. Others have felt the depression but are looking upward now.

But the Samson remains the largest—overwhelmingly so—industry of the city, either actual or prospective. In it is and has been wrapped up much of the future of Janesville. At the very time when it was getting from hope and anticipation into actual active being, came the revolution in every line of activity. The agricultural machinery industry was hardest hit, for its customer was the recipient of the most severe blow. More than a billion dollars in values were struck from the farmer's assets in movable crops, in a few weeks. What could one expect in such a plight? Just what happened of course: stagnation in those lines of industry, dependent upon the farmer as the ultimate buyer. Naturally the Samson, youngest of the industries in allied lines, could not escape the blow. What has happened has been the most logical thing that could have occurred. What has been done is what the man on the prairie does when the tornado comes: gets into the cyclone cellar.

But the storm has passed now and the sun begins to break through the clouds. So the Samson emerges with others and gradually resumes its place in the industrial world, a live entity, a mighty industrial force.

Still there have been rumors based on conjecture and guesses and more rumors as to the future of the Samson here. It was thought sufficient when Pierre du Pont was here and clearly stated that the Samson Tractor plant would be a large factor in the General Motors organization that, no matter what changes were made and what shifts here and there followed, the ultimate destiny of the Samson was to carry out the big idea which had given it birth.

Now that President Craig has in a public gathering of the men who have been pushing to a successful termination the expansion campaign of the Chamber of Commerce, stated emphatically that this (testimony was certain and sure, it is hoped that these rumor-mongers will keep silence at least. Mr. Craig had taken the right step to close the door to further voluntary and gratuitous pessimism.

Janesville is with you, Mr. Craig, in everything it can do to make the Samson a great industrial success.

Anyhow no one will have to read a book to find out what Col. Harvey means.

TRYING GERMAN WAR CRIMES.

One of the clauses of the Versailles treaty and of the agreements entered into between the allied nations and Germany was for the trial of certain German officers and civilians for crimes against international law and the rules of civilized warfare. On Thursday the first one of the German prisoners on trial was convicted and sentenced to 10 months in prison. He was a minor culprit and had already been found guilty by a German court martial on the same charges—cruelty and brutality to prisoners at a camp in Westphalia. This court now sitting is composed of seven German Supreme Court justices, pledged to an impartial hearing and there are also present the British solicitor general and representatives of the Entente.

In the old court room at Leipzig, from whose walls look down the portraits of old Saxon kings, the evidence was given that Heyen had brutally beaten prisoners with his fists, gun butts, stones and other weapons.

The episode is indeed strange and remarkable. There is a long list of others to be tried and so far the court has shown impartiality and a desire to administer only justice.

Although brutal prices have fallen considerably, one need not be in a hurry to take advantage of the cut rates.

One of the sensible things proposed to relieve the burden of taxation is to place a heavy penalty on the fortunes of those who marry into foreign titles and foreign representatives, dragging from America millions of dollars annually. Much of it comes back in attorneys' fees in the divorce courts but we are supporting several thousand parasites in pants in Europe with the sweat of American toil.

REVIVAL OF THE MASK.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New York City—One of the most notable features of this year's theatrical season, now drawing to a close, has been the revival of masks upon the stage. The season has been an exceptional one, containing many surprises and thrills, but nothing more sensational than the moment when the American dancer, Miss Severn, paused in the midst of the dramatic Village Polka and took off her face—a beautiful, painted face that had seemed unquestionably to belong to her. After that, the audience was prepared for anything, and Miss Severn did not disappoint it. She put on and took off a whole series of convincing faces.

The new masks are the work of the well known artist, W. T. Benda. They have nothing in common with the kind affected by highwaymen, nor yet those worn by department store Santa Clauses, but draw their inspiration from the early days of the race when the mask was an important factor in the religious ritual.

To John Murray Anderson belongs the distinction of bringing back to the stage this oldest of dramatic features. Anderson is a member of that group of theatre radicals, led by Rhinoceros and Gordon Craig who have rebelled against the photographic realism of the present-day theatre and are going back to the primitive for their inspiration. He first saw the Benda masks when they were worn by Margaret Severn in a pantomime produced last spring at the New York Coffee House Club. He was immediately impressed with their great artistic value, and decided that the folks should feature them.

Mr. Benda's part in the revival of the mask, while important, was purely accidental. "I was forced at the last moment to make a paper mask to wear to a masquerade ball," he explained when questioned concerning his discovery. "It served well and for days lay around my studio. Then I thought of preserving it in more permanent form, and began fashioning it out of cardboard. The work had a strange fascination, which grew until mask-making became a sort of a hobby with me. A thousand dollars would not cover the cost of time, skill and labor I put into each mask. But there is an hypnotic charm, as the early Greeks discovered."

As may be imagined from this explanation, each of the Benda masks is a real work of art. The artist spends weeks in fashioning one head of cardboard and paper, often lining the interior with gold leaf and carefully painting the exterior. First, he makes a sketch of the face on cardboard. Then he cuts out the features and adjusts them, rounding the cheeks, filling out depressions with bits of paper, and building up his effects like a sculptor with clay. The result is a face which when ready for painting, looks much like a human face after emerging from a major plastic operation. There is usually a small slit for the eyes, which are painted on paper, painted dark brown, form the eyelashes. The nostrils are well slit, also, to permit breathing, but the mouths are closed. Hair is painted on or built up by means of painted paper.

"I have recently been experimenting with masks from living models," says Mr. Benda. "From careful drawing of the model's face I cut out the profile and fit it to the face, filling out the discrepancies with bits of paper until all is rounded to the contour of the original—in short, a perfect fit. It is delicate, tedious work. When the whole mask is feature proof, I paint it as would a portrait painter."

Mr. Benda's studio in Gramercy Park contains dozens of masks, each of which is a distinct masterpiece of its kind. It was from this collection, representing three years' work, that Mr. Anderson selected the masks for Miss Severn to wear in the Folies.

The only drawback to the use of the mask is that it cannot be worn continuously throughout a performance. Owing to the difficulty it presents to breathing, the time limit for its continuous wear is 15 minutes. In the case of pantomime when they are worn throughout the entire scene, they are promptly removed as the curtain falls.

Mr. Benda, who is the nephew of the late Madame Modjeska, has always been interested in the theatre. It was his knowledge of the history of the drama which caused him to become interested in the making of masks. In the libraries and museums he found masks of masks that had been worn five centuries before Christ. "And they were pretty good masks, too," he said. "Even those of the Greeks represented real artistic achievements."

No one knows when the first masks came into being, but it is well known that they were used in ancient tribal dances. The tribal dance, of course, was the first form of dramatic art. It was the race's first form of self-expression and was developed in connection with religious worship. The dance is still the only form of dramatic art practiced by primitive tribes existing in the world today.

"Among the Aleutians mystic mask-dances form part of their holy ceremonies," we are told by one authority. "Some of these dances are performed by women. Hundreds of women dance round their idols by moonlight, and all have their faces covered with wooden masks, painted in imitation of the heads of sea animals. These masks have long, pointed eyes, long, pointed noses, and have the head covered with a framework of cane, decorated with vegetable substances to represent hair. Sometimes the masks are made of two tortoise shells elaborately put together and carved."

"In New Britain the natives observe the pleasant custom of using the skulls of their deceased relatives for masks. The skull is provided at the back with a transverse bar, which the dancer keeps in his teeth while whirling about. The head is covered with a kind of clay, painted with red, white and blue stripes around the eyes and mouth."

The Greeks also used masks for their dramatic, interludic dances, but after this they seem largely to have disappeared.

That the name of Frances Willard is to be placed in the Hall of Fame among other distinguished Americans, is gratifying to the people of this section of the country. Here in the very borders of Janesville she grew to young womanhood. It is more fitting than ever, that the old Willard school house should be preserved in a place where it can be cared for well and where it may serve as a memorial to the distinguished dead after whom it was named.

Very gratifying it is to Janesville to know that the locks of Samson have not been shorn.

JUST FOLKS.

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

WHY COLFERS ARE DIFFERENT.
He never made the major league when he was playing ball. He couldn't make his college team, but didn't grieve at all. When he was young and supple and had strength to spend and spend and spend, he'd strike out with the bases full, but didn't rave and swear. And he didn't fling his bat away or sit around and sob. Because he couldn't steal a base or hit like Ty Cobb.

When he was playing tennis, his was not a top-notch game. His play was ordinary, but it pleased him just the same. He was happy and contented if he conquered now and then. And never dreamed of ranking with the leading tennis men.

He played the game for pleasure and he didn't fuss or fret. Every time he missed in service or his ball went in the net.

But today he's fat and forty and his stomach's in the way. And he's laid with the golfers and he's learning how to play. There's age upon his shoulders, and there's success in his bones. But he wants the pro to teach him how to drive like Bobby Jones. And Alex Ross can't tell him, when his brow with sweat is drenched. In a way that is convincing, that he'll never be a "champ."

Who's Who Today.

THE REV. SIDNEY J. CATTS.

"Who is Catts?" was a burning question in Florida when the Rev. Sidney J. Catts announced his candidacy for governor of that state in the summer of 1916. Today the question is being asked in all parts of the country, for widely published dispatches have told how the ex-governor has been accused on charges of peonage and bribery.

When he announced his candidacy for the governor, Catts had been a resident of Florida only four years and was almost entirely unknown outside the immediate neighborhood of his home, DuPont in Walton county. His candidacy was generally ridiculed as an act of presumption, but he got the backing of the Guardians of the Constitution, the Prohibitionists with the slogan "Make the State Dry," and a host of the politically strongest men of the state in the race for the nomination.

Sidney Johnstone Catts was born near Pleasant Hill, Ala., July 21, 1853. He studied at Howard college, a Baptist institution, and afterward at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. In 1882 he was graduated from the Lebanon, Tenn., law school and two years later entered the Baptist ministry. After serving as pastor of the Baptist church at Port Deposit, Ala., he went to the First Baptist church at Tuskegee, but later returned to Port Deposit.

In 1904 he ran for congress in the Fifth congressional district of Alabama, but was beaten by Thomas J. Heflin. Soon afterward he resigned his pastorate because his congregation refused to respond to an appeal for funds for the building of a new church. He then came down to the plantation of Walton county, Fla.

As governor he became known by a somewhat erratic and noisy policy. On one occasion he refused a demand by Governor Whitman of New York for the extradition of a man named Gordon, who had been indicted for the murder of a woman while in Florida, notwithstanding it was shown that Gordon had married another woman in May, 1912, he ordered the arrest of federal labor recruiting agents.

But it was in the closing days of his administration that he exhibited his most remarkable traits. In December last he got into a heated controversy with Joseph E. Brown, owner of the West Palm Beach Post, who had been a personal friend and political supporter. Earman said some rude things about him to which he responded in a letter, threatening to come down to West Palm Beach with a buck shot and blow Earman into the Gulf Stream. However, he did not execute the threat.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE CALLING OF THE NURSE

A nurse asking for advice about gaining weight remarks that she "accepts none but 12-hour cases," meaning that she refuses to work more than 12 hours a day. At that, she works about 16 hours longer than most women should work. And she does hard work, too.

Yet there is no other calling or profession—I myself do not consider nursing a profession, but rather a calling—which a woman can follow, short of the most sacred of all callings, motherhood, that wins for a young woman so much love and respect as that which is hers. It is a hard life with mighty little of the glamour which surrounds the nurse in the world of fiction and youthful romance, yet a noble one and full of worth and honor never can be felt vicariously in the imagination.

Young women who seriously wish to study nursing should understand that practical nursing requires a complete high school education as a preliminary qualification for admittance to the prescribed course. Here and there a hospital or other institution may accept a young woman who is not high school graduate, but I would not advise a young woman to seek training in such an institution. If you are not qualified to qualify for a first class training, don't try to find a short cut. Better to be a practical nurse without any pretenses to the skill of a graduate nurse. We have plenty of nurses nowadays. For intelligent, trustworthy women who are prepared to do practical nursing.

The young woman intending to study nursing should have good health, study nursing cannot cope with the work a pupil nurse is called upon to do in the two or three years of her training.

Two years is ample time for the thorough training of good nurses, although a few hospitals with excessive highbrow notions have adopted a three-year course. This represents one good year of instruction, so far as ordinary medical and surgical and obstetrical nursing is concerned. A good many three-year graduates are spoiled by the superfluous year—made top-heavy, they cannot handle the work of a better nurse and they finished at the end of the second year. Of all the dangers there is none greater than the danger of a little knowledge. A good nurse is never content with a few scraps of knowledge and prescribes treatment—incompetent and almost doctors are fond of that caper.

Q. What kind of food should be used with poison as rat bait? R. K. A. The department of agriculture stresses the fact that it is necessary to tempt the rat for rats of this country by providing a variety of foods. Select food from the three classes—meat, vegetable and cereal—combining each with barium carbonate in the proportion of one part of food to four parts of food. If one kind of food does not attract the rat, probably another sort will.

Q. Who furnishes bronze name plates for soldier memorial trees? L. W. A. The American Forestry association, Washington, D. C., furnishes such plates for memorial trees.

Q. How is a break in a cable under water mended? L. S. A. The Bureau of Landa's says that steamers are specially equipped for the purpose of mending a break in a cable under the ocean. Steaming at right angles to the cable they pick up one end of it with grapples. They pass along this till they come to the break. A new piece is spliced on, the other broken end picked up and another splice made.

Q. What kind of wood are xylophones made of? M. C. C. The bars of many xylophones are made of hanged wood. This gives a clear and brilliant tone and is hard enough to withstand hard usage. The wood of which they are made is made of wood cut from three to seven years, in order that the bars will stay in tune. The sounding board frames are usually made of white quarter sawed oak with sound boards of spruce.

Q. What became of the famous Long Tom gun, and what weight was it? E. B. A. The Long Tom is a 14-inch gun which was originally part of the batteries in Rhode Island. It was captured by the British in 1780 and sold to America. During the French attack on Haiti in 1804 it was used and dismounted until 1812. It was placed on the "General Armstrong" which ran the blockade of the British at New Orleans, 1815. The General Armstrong ran into the bay near Haiti, Fayal (Azore) Island after an encounter with a British squadron, through which she was rendered helpless.

Boys and girls must be in the best shape to meet them. Every parent should understand the physical details, which without actually making the child ill, may nevertheless handicap him in the approaching term. ### "FIGHTING DOC" TO FIGHT LANDLORDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago—C. H. Ziegler, known along the north "gold coast" as the "fighting doc," announced Friday he would appeal the adverse ruling which put in one of the most spectacular landlord-tenant battles which have dogged Chicago court calendars. Ziegler displayed a huge sign in front of his apartment objecting to a rent increase from $155 to $225 and replaced one torn down in his absence. On Sunday he made speeches against "profiteering landlords" to the crowds that assembled to read his signs. A jury in Judge Trude's court decided Thursday he must vacate his apartment, but Ziegler fled a $500 bond and announced he would fight this thing through the United States supreme court.

AMERICA FORWARD

We have now met, one after another, practically all the difficulties that come during a period of deflation. The clouds are behind; clear skies are ahead. Another crop is on the way; to be gathered in the fall. The American farmer, ever faithful to his duty and responsibility as the support of our national activity and prosperity, has set his hand to the plow. Let America follow his example, fall in step, and MOVE FORWARD.

OPEN TURDAY EVENINGS

'THE GIRL WHO HAD NO CHANCE'

By Marion Rubincam

CHAPTER XLIV.

She had secretly known herself when she stepped before the long glass. The soft folds of the chiffon draped themselves about her in lines of slenderness and grace and the band of gray fur was a supremely clever touch. Since the full soiled tunic had been cut off the draped undershirt now became the skirt of the dress itself, long enough to make Ruth look older, short enough to show the gray silk stockings and the slippers that were once Emily's.

It was a few minutes after 11 o'clock when they were ready—and the talk had been only of clothes. Myra sailed hastily in her glittering beaded dress with silver slippers, and a gleaming fan. Ruth in her comparatively quiet costume, and both girls were lost in admiration, first of one, then the other.

"I must say it's a mutual admiration party," Gaby's voice came from the doorway. "Myra, what have you done to this dear, little girl? She looks like a sure enough grown-up society lady."

Ruth blushed at the implied compliment. Gaby studied her critically, while she ripped off her own dress and tossed it hastily aside. "You'd better wear my silver scarf, or why wear any?" she rattled on. "You've such good arms, you oughtn't to mind showing them. Will you look at me up? Myra, the party is arriving. Go into the other room and be a sweet hostess while I get into this dress."

Tim's voice was heard from the hall. Ruth was glad she could stay back a moment under pretense of helping Gaby dress.

"Run on in, I'll struggle along alone," Gaby said. "There's your friend from the dear old home town, don't you hear him? Better see him now, you won't get a chance when the party really arrives."

"I'd rather wait and help you dress," Ruth answered. Something in her tone caught the ear of the little actress. She looked up—suddenly suspicious when she saw Ruth's face.

"I thought so," she said, her own quite different. "Myra is such a little fool. She can't help but give herself away. I knew she was deliberately flirting with Tim, but I didn't know—" she stopped suddenly. "Didn't know what?" Ruth wanted to have it all out now.

That he was the chap who was engaged to you. Myra talks a lot, you see, and she told me about you and her admiration for your struggle there at home. She really does adore you, Ruth, and admires you immensely. But she's simply a natural born, ruthless little flirt. She didn't have a thing to do with her time, and she carried on outrageously with Tim. Well, she got him. It was poor sportsmanship on her part. I'll say, when she knew you liked him."

All this time Gaby was powdering her face and fixing her thick black hair with quick, deft fingers.

"It doesn't make any difference, I'm not in love—any more," Ruth answered, sitting down suddenly on the bed.

"You're a little brick," Gaby jumped up, dropping the long train of her dress. "You deserve better than Tim, and you'll get it. Let's see, there's a man coming tonight. Come here till I put some rouge on your cheeks. No, don't protest. You mustn't look like a ghost. Only a touch, so no one will know—and you look like a genuine little Quaker."

But Ruth felt grown up and quite sophisticated when she joined the group in the front room. There were nearly a dozen there now. She was pleased, too, because she looked so pretty. She, too, could be beautiful if she had money and leisure and a chance to dress up like these women.

Then, so curious to the effect of fine clothes upon the feminine psychology, found herself no longer dreading to meet Tim. She was like the best of these women. In fact, her own quietness made her stand out in contrast to the universal brilliancy and glitter. She heard one man ask:

"Who's the stunning girl, Gaby?"

And Gaby brought him up and presented him to Ruth.

She was pretty then. She could be charming too. She could be all the things that had attracted Tim, and had taken him away from her! A little feeling of power ran through her, the first she had experienced, and she smiled in it.

WHEN BEBE SERVED TIME FOR SPEEDING

Bebe Daniels "languishing" in jail.

Assigned to cell No. 236 in the Orange county, California, jail, after conviction on a charge of speeding, Bebe Daniels, the motion picture actress, "did time" for ten days, having waived her right of appeal. She took up her duty with the "kitchen squad," assigned to her immediately upon registering with the sheriff.

Gaby had about eight men and four women in her party, and they quite filled her tiny room. There was a buzz of talk, a lot of laughing, much of it too loud or too high, and talk of people and things strange to Ruth. "You're so quiet," a voice said to her. She turned to smile at the man whose compliment she had overheard. He was a Mr. Jordan, who had something to do with the stage, she did not know what.

"I like to listen," Ruth answered. "It's a new world to me, you see."

They sat and talked awhile, forgetting the others. Mr. Jordan, it seemed, was not an actor. He designed and painted scenery for plays, and knew a great many theatrical people. The men were all connected with the stage, except one tall, awkward-looking man who sat rather silently apart.

"He's some sort of a Wall street millionaire," Mr. Jordan explained. "He's a humbless old duck who has more money than he knows what to do with and he wants to be a producer. He likes the theater and will follow after the stupidest chorus girl if she'll introduce him to stage people."

He went on giving her the histories of most of those present, and finally drew from her a brief account of her own life at home—brief because Ruth said nothing of the need of money, which was three-fourths of the life there, after all.

The Spoils of the Strong

By ELINOR TALBOT KINCAID

"Let us hope you are right about it," responded Alfred, "but we must wait until we have applied the remedy."

"And the remedy?" she inquired, humoring him.

"The remedy? The remedy is war—and universal military service. That's what will make men. This country has had a life of ease too long. War will bring to the front the best of men who will put to shame this present weakness. And by Jove, if I don't believe we're going to have it, too. See here—"

He reached for one of the papers on the table, but Evelyn quickly and firmly removed it from his grasp.

"We mustn't talk any more about these things today. It isn't good for you. It's really bad for you."

He leaned back in his invalid chair and sat looking thoughtfully off into the distance.

"Evelyn," he said at length, "I simply can't understand you. I just can't. How can you hold the views you do? Great heaven, where would this country have been if those old revolutionary ancestors of yours and mine had thought as you do? They certainly weren't!—he laughed grimly—"there certainly weren't any weak and womanish pacifists among them!" Evelyn's cool and steady hand closed gently over his hot and throbbing one.

"You poor dear boy—you are so, so tired!" she exclaimed.

For a moment he was silent, then "something made her add quickly, 'Sometimes—sometimes when you are feeling very much stronger and better—maybe I can make you understand how it is that war has come to mean to me a madness, an loneliness, a madness. You see, dear—just briefly and finally—I hold that there is a higher patriotism than that you are dreaming of, a patriotism that presupposes the fatherhood of God and the universal brotherhood of man. That is why I am not willing to accept the code of courage of the streets, or, in higher spheres, the mailed fist of the doctrine of force against the principles of Christianity.'"

He turned and looked at her long and steadily.

"I wonder—I wonder if there can actually be anything in what you say."

She rose and stood over him, looking down very tenderly upon him, and a smile, indulgent, beautiful in its sudden dash, illumined her face.

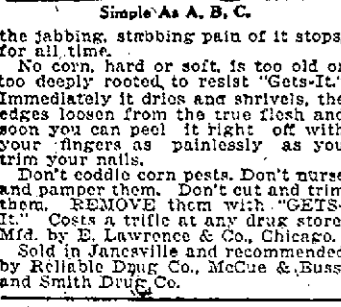

"Yes, there is something—everything in it," she said. "Now, it is time for your afternoon nap."

Billy Whiskers

Billy even went so far in his "surprise" process as to stand in the stream where the water was so deep that it flowed through his long beard until it was washed as clean and white as snow and which, after it had done this, he waved as proudly as if it curled by some fashionable hair-dresser's curling iron.

There was a beautiful full moon, which Nannie said reminded her of the one that shone on the night they were married in this same pasture, for it was just as full and just as bright then as now.

There were cows, calves, goats, pigs and cats at the banquet, and an old crow and owl perched in a tree near by, and gave warning in case any one approached or spied upon them. Several chickens and turkeys almost made bold to roost in the oak tree before dawn, and as they were there when the feast began. They came early because they were afraid of night-hawks and weasels if they crossed the meadow after dark.

Presently, sneaking alone in the shadow of the fence, came two or three sheep, then a cow and a calf, bolder than the rest, sallied down the middle of the pasture as unconscious as if they were merely going for a drink. Next a horse came running along as if exercising himself, but the odd feature of it all was that they carried something in their mouth, and they were carrying it to the pasture, and all made for the same place in the pasture.

"Dear-oh-me! I am sure I don't know what to carry to the banquet," mused an old black tom cat, as he prowled round the house looking for something that a goat would like to eat. "Goats don't like meat—or I fancy that," he thought, "but I don't believe that. I am not inclined to believe everything that I hear. Just the same, it is getting late and I must be going or the banquet will be over before I get there. I have it. I will creep down cellar and steal some of that cold chicken from the swinging shelf. That ought to taste good to them." So down the cellar steps he crept, and snatched a leg of chicken from the platter, where it had been put for tomorrow's luncheon.

Leaving the house, Black Joe (for that was the cat's name) ran out the garden under the currant bushes until he was out of sight of the house, and then he took to his heels and fairly flew across the broad strip of moonlight that stretched between him and his goal, for it shone directly in front of the dog's kennel, and Jack well-knew that it would be a life-and-death struggle if the dog caught him taking chicken from the house, for they had never been good friends and it was only because they both belonged to the same family that they put up with each other at all.

"Now, wow!" barked the dog in his sleep.

Jump, jump, jump, went the cat, lightly shutting his teeth to hold the chicken leg, while he ran toward the fence that bounded the pasture. Once outside he let the bone drop to rest his jaws a moment, and then he snatched it up and ran swiftly to where the other guests had already assembled under the oak tree.

"Here you are at last, Jack. We have been waiting for you," said Nannie.

"You are usually the first," said Billy. "I hope nothing happened to you."

"Oh, not only I could think of nothing you vegetarians like, so I spent lots of time looking around and at last had to give up and bring something that we cats dearly love."

(And Saturday you will hear lots more about the banquet.)

BOYS CAN'T DECIDE WHOSE DOG PARK IS

(Last day of "The Finding of Parp")

It was 3 o'clock that afternoon when Sam and Eddie, exploring bold members of the Northville with the little rough-coated fox-terrier they had found in the cave, in their arms. His front leg was broken, and he had probably crawled into Don's cave as a place of refuge. Though he was yet in misery his whines were less mournful.

"Yes, his leg is broken," announced Mr. Parker in Parker's drug store, where the boys had immediately taken the dog for an inspection. "and it has gone for so long I don't know whether I can fix it or not, but I'll try." With the assistance of Eddie and Sam, splints and bandages were put on the dog's leg and food was given him. He seemed a stranger in Northville—no one recognized him.

So the matter of a home for him came next. "I guess we won't let me have him," said Eddie, and Sam believed his mother wouldn't give her consent either.

But at home that night, just after supper, Eddie brought up the subject of dogs. "May I have one, Mother, please—please, Ma?"

"Well, all right, if it's a nice dog," Whereupon Eddie started the story of the finding of the terrier. "An' I'm going to keep him," he concluded.

But in Sam's home the same thing was taking place. So at 7 o'clock as Sam hurried to Parker's, where he was to meet Eddie, he primed himself to announce the fact that he would give the dog a home.

"You don't," determined Eddie firmly as Sam related his intentions. "That dog's mine—I found him, and I'm going to keep him."

In a minute the wrangling had grown so hot that Hornblower was forced to butt in.

"Own him together, boys," he suggested. "One keep him for one week and the other for the next."

DOGS OR GIRLS?

If you had a dog, That, every time You visited your best Girl, Chased her Pet out up a Tree, would You punish the Dog, or lose your Girl? The answer Is easy: Leave the old dog At home—Jack Carr.

Have you tried a dingbat yet? Don't delay. The sooner you send one in the sooner it will be printed. If it comes up to scratch, write one to-night or tomorrow. You'll have plenty of time and dingbats are easy to compose.

A "Trailing Party," something novel in the way of club games, suggested in the Woodcraft Manual of the Y. M. C. A. Clubs, was recently tried out by the Washington High School Club of Huron, South Dakota, with much success. A trail was laid out that led the followers around the outskirts of the town and then, much to their delight, for they probably were very hungry after the long walk, through the back entrance of a restaurant, where they were furnished with soup and wafers.

At a party of the High School Y. M. C. A. girls of University Place, Nebraska, all the characters of the "funny papers" came to life. Every guest was dressed to represent a comic character in the comic paper, or some

Dinner Stories

He had owned a dog, and this was the story he told. "The way that dog was devoted to me was amazing. He heard me say to my wife that I was pressed for money, so he went and died the day before the dog tax was due."

Bliggins for some years had gone the pace that kills, only it didn't kill him but merely reformed him. Then he joined the church and rose so high in its councils that he was sent to one of the big cities as delegate to a convention.

"How was it?" asked a friend when he returned.

"The convention? Oh, all right," answered Bliggins. "But that town! Some town! It'd only been a dog-gate to something here before I got converted!"

A motorist touring in the west managed to get his car stuck in a tenacious mudhole. After he made vain attempts to escape, a boy appeared with a team. "Haul you out, mister?" How much do you want?" "Two dollars." After a long and fruitless argument the motorist agreed to pay the amount asked and the car was pulled to dry land. After handing the money to the lad, the motorist asked: "Do you haul many cars out in a day?" "I pulled out 12 cars today." "Do you work at night, too?" "Yes, at night I haul water for the mud-hole."

"He told me he loved me," "Has he told anyone else?" "No." "Then get him to do so."

All geniuses are more or less eccentric. Some have even been known to pay their debts.

NUXATED IRON

Helps make rich, red blood and revitalize weak nerves

A CAUSE OF WOMEN'S ILLS

WOMEN OFTEN THINK THEY HAVE HEART TROUBLE, INDIGESTION, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, ETC., WHEN IT'S SIMPLY IRON STARVATION OF THE BLOOD.

Many women believe they are weak and nervous as a result of age, worry and overwork; they think that their disturbed digestion, headaches, heart palpitation, shortness of breath, pains across the back, etc., are due to some serious disease instead of the real cause—iron starvation of the blood. This is proven by the fact that when many of these same women take organic iron for awhile all their alarming symptoms quickly disappear and they become strong, robust and healthy. Iron is necessary to enable your blood to change food into living cells and tissue. Without it nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—iron not get the strength out of food until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, but take some organic iron—Nuxated Iron—at once. But be sure it's organic iron and not metallic iron, which people usually take and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Organic NUXATED IRON is like iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lettuce and apples and it often increases the bodily and mental vigor of weak, worn-out women in two weeks' time.

Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Every package will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN HIRACE

XVII—TENNESSEE

The history of Tennessee stretches back to the year 1541 when De Soto with his party of Spanish adventurers probably reached the present site of Memphis on the Mississippi. The French under La Salle built a fort here about 1682. The English also laid claim to this territory, including it in the grant to North Carolina.

Last one: Nothing is given so properly as advice.—La Rochefoucauld.

NUTS TO CRACK (Make up one and send it in.) Why is a candle wick like the city of Athens? Last one: "Where did Noah strike the first nail in the Ark?"—On the head.

It was not until 1770 that the first permanent settlement was made by James Robertson and this was soon followed by many other settlers from North Carolina. They formed what they called the Washington district, but this was short lived as it was promptly annexed to North Carolina. In 1784 the inhabitants, indignant over North Carolina's attitude toward them, declared their independence and formed the state of Franklin or Frankland. As this secession was not countenanced by North Carolina, for a number of years a state of confusion existed with two sets of officers trying to govern. Meanwhile the settlement suffered severely from hostile Indians and from the Spanish, who still held Louisiana, and controlled the Mississippi river. In 1790 North Carolina finally ceded this territory to the United States. By 1798 the population had increased over 60,000, so Tennessee was admitted as the sixteenth state of the Union.

At the outbreak of the Civil war, Tennessee joined the Confederacy. In 1866, when the state was readmitted to the Union, there was much disorder during the reconstruction period. This led to the formation of the Ku Klux Klan, the influence of which quickly spread throughout the Southern states. This secret organization took into its own hands the suppression of crime and the administration of justice.

Tennessee contains 42,022 square miles, and is sometimes called the Volunteer state. It is named after its principal river, which is a Cherokee word meaning "Crooked River" or "bend in the river."

Nearly Died on Birthday

"On my birthday, eight months ago, I had another close call. We had just finished dinner. My stomach began to hurt me, a minute later I was unconscious. Three doctors worked on me. I was soaked with a cold sweat when I came to. The next week, telling a friend about it and he advised trying Mary's Wonderful Remedy. Since taking a course of your medicine I have been able to eat anything. I have no more pains or bloating and am feeling better than for ten years." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. People's Drug Co., and druggists everywhere.

A Fund of Information That You Should Have

DISRAELI, who for six years was prime minister of England, said: "It has been my observation that the most successful man in any undertaking, is the man who has the most information."

It doesn't require any particular information just to go out and buy something. But to buy the best of that something at a price that is satisfactory to you—that is a successful purchase. And to make successful purchases you must have information.

Advertising gives you just that kind of information. It tells you where to go in order to get the best of anything you want at a fair price.

That is why it is a paying proposition for the man or woman who handles a pocket book to study the advertisements in this newspaper—regularly—every day.

To those who use it properly, newspaper advertising is a source of economy and satisfaction that never runs dry. It is a watch-dog of dollars—a guarantee of satisfaction.

If you would learn the facts about the things you need to make you comfortable and happy.

Four Mates Died Suspiciously, Woman's Fifth Remains Loyal

Mrs. Lydia Southard and two of her alleged victims: Robert Dooley (left) and Edward Meyers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

San Francisco.—When Mrs. Lydia Trueblood Southard returns from Honolulu with her fifth husband, Paul Vincent Southard, chief petty officer of the U. S. cruiser Monterey, she will need all the help that adoring young man has to give her in the great legal battle to prove that she did not murder the four husbands who in quite rapid succession preceded him.

Despite the charges that have been made against his wife, who is not yet 30, Southard remains true to her, and from Honolulu has sent this statement:

"I have absolute confidence in her innocence. She has been a good, true wife to me, and I have never had the slightest reason to question her. She has been in poor health since coming to Hawaii, and we both will be glad to return to Idaho."

The bride's plight is traceable directly to the uncertainty of the county coroner of Twin Falls over the cause of the death of her fourth husband, Edward F. Meyers, on September 20, last. The body was examined, evidence of arsenic discovered, and a general investigation ordered. While this was under way, the young widow went to the coast and was married again. Before her arrest was ordered, Idaho detectives trailed back through her life and uncovered a series of remarkable events.

Lydia Trueblood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Trueblood of Keasville, Mo. She won local fame for her beauty as a child and developed a sophisticated charm as she grew older that made her extremely noticeable. She became acquainted with the Dooley family of prosperous farmers, and Robert Dooley became enamored of her. The Trueblood family moved to Twin Falls about 1910, and Robert, love-stricken, followed. Lydia and he were married in 1912.

The first death.

They moved back to a Missouri farm, but the farm was no longer attractive to the petted wife. The bridegroom, Robert, and his brother Edward took out an insurance policy of $2,000, which provided that half the amount was to go to the surviving brother and the rest to Lydia in case of the death of either.

Then came the first death in the girl's married life. Edward Dooley died after a sudden illness, on August 9, 1915, less than six years ago. He was only 35 years old. The coroner's certificate ascribed the death to typhoid fever. The insurance company paid $1,000 to Robert and Lydia as the dead man's policy provided.

The day after Edward's death, Robert and Lydia took out another $2,000 policy which stipulated that the money would be paid to the survivor in the event of either of them.

On October 1, 1915, Robert Dooley died after a short, sudden illness. The coroner's certificate gave the cause of death as typhoid fever. The insurance company without question paid the $2,000 to the wife. In the period between the deaths of the brothers Mrs. Dooley bore a child, Lorraine.

Deputy Sheriff Ormsby said the woman had told him after her husband's death that he had contracted typhoid from drinking water in a well into which surface water had run. The baby had been given some of the water, too, she said. The baby died on November 15 of the same year. Again typhoid was the cause, written into the coroner's certificate.

Another insurance policy.

Two years later, the young attractive widow was married to W. G. McKaffie. He obtained a life insurance policy for $5,000. The bride couple went to live in Harbin, Montana. He died of influenza in the mountains a year later, according to the official records of the town.

When the question of paying on the policy of insurance came up, the insurance companies asserted that the second payment had not been made as required in the contract. They refused to pay off the policy.

Lydia Trueblood, now Mrs. McKaffie, moved to Denver, Colo., and in May, 1919, was married to Harlan Lewis. They immediately moved to Billings, Mont., and a month later the bridegroom took out a $5,000 life insurance policy. The next month he became violently ill and died within twenty-four hours. The cause of death was arsenic poisoning, and the coroner's certificate, according to the medical records, Lydia Trueblood, now Mrs. McKaffie, collected the $5,000 and returned to Twin Falls, the scene of her first romance.

On August 10, 1919, she became the bride of Edward Meyer at Pocatello. This deputy sheriff asserted, and in this ceremony she is charged with having given the name of Anna May McKaffie. Why this was done is not clear to the authorities who charge it, but they hint that there was a substantial reason for her desiring to conceal that she had ever married Lewis, the third husband.

Sought $10,000 Policy.

The deputy sheriff declares that the day after her fourth marriage the young woman tried to get a policy for $10,000 insurance on her husband's life. Whether this is so, the fact is that the policy was not delivered to her.

The bride went with Lewis to his Snake River ranch to live. Within two weeks of the marriage, the bridegroom became desperately ill after supper. He was taken to a hospital, appeared to gain strength, then on September 7, 1919, he suffered a relapse and died.

The circumstances aroused suspicion. Mrs. Meyer was a woman of mystery by that time in the community. She was questioned as to previous marriages. She denied positively ever having married Lewis, and nothing could shake her statements.

But the chemists were suspicious. They examined the viscera of the ranchman and reported evidence of arsenic. The inquiry was pushed further. The bride disappeared suddenly.

Detectives were detailed to trace her. They located the young woman in this city, Los Angeles, and kept her under surveillance, while the Idaho inquiry was continued. The bodies of the Dooley brothers and the infant daughter were exhumed. Again the report of the chemist was that traces of arsenic were found. McKaffie's body was exhumed, and once more the examiners said indications of poison were still present.

Flypaper Was Used.

Investigation of the Meyers ranch revealed that part of a package of old-fashioned flypaper had been used, and that the rancher's death followed its removal from the original package, though the missing paper could not be discovered.

But, before the Idaho authorities could set Mrs. Lydia Trueblood-Dooley-McKaffie-Lewis-Meyer was Mrs. Paul Vincent Southard, wife of the chief petty officer of the cruiser Chicago. They were wed very quietly and soon after the ceremony he obtained a transfer to the Monterey, and both went to Honolulu.

The bride expressed amazement at the charges, and demanded an explanation. When it was given her she said:

"I never poisoned anyone in my life, and under no circumstances would I have caused the death of my husband. I have the certificates to show it. I will go back as soon as possible to face these accusations. I can prove my complete innocence of every one of these charges."

"M. W."—Don't be silly, little girl. Hasn't he a perfect right to stand on a corner and talk to another girl? You can still be chaste, unless you insist upon trying to tie him to your apron strings.

"B. Don't make your friendship such an easy thing that he won't value it. B. R. "Don't"—Starts don't really break like that; you just think they do. Dear, and if you will give your half a chance, it will be all right. You can't say you are not in love, and there are just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught, and then just show him how many good friends you can make.

"Peggy"—I don't think it's the thing for a girl 16 years old to have a steady fellow. How do you think you ever going to be sure that you wouldn't like some other boy better, if you never get married? B. R. "You will be grown up, and settled down, and married, and tied to one man for a long time. Peggy—better enjoy being a good girl while they all wait for you."

"Two American Beauties"—It is not proper for a girl to sit on a boy's knee and let him put his arm around her when they are out riding. B. R. "I hope every girl in town will see this and believe it. Watch the column. Girls, for a longer answer to your other question."

"Curiosity"—Send a stamped, addressed envelope and I will try to help you, but you ought to realize that I couldn't answer all those questions in our column.

"Dear"—You ought to have the friendship of both men. If the first friend is not willing to remain a friend only, nor willing for you to have other friends, you must decide between him and all others—which means, how much do you love him?

"H. C. W."—The way for a "lonely" little raindrop to get over being lonely is to go where other nice raindrops are and get acquainted. Ever try church? You'll be surprised how nice it is. And the fraternal organizations usually have a social life that gives opportunity for young men and women to get together. Good luck—only don't try to

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 17 and a stenographer in a downtown office. I have been keeping steady company for nearly a year with a young man about whom I do not care, but of whom my parents approve. He has always treated me with respect, but he is very jealous of me. He doesn't realize that I am young and want to go around and have a good time. He wants to be with me all the time.

My "steady" belongs to a club of a number of respectable young men, one of whom called me up and wanted to make a date with me. I refused, not because I didn't like him, but my parents object to anyone, but my "steady."

I told my "steady" about this fellow and did not think any more about it, but my "steady" went straight to him after I had told him not to say a word, and had a row with him.

Whenever I see this fellow he seems to admire me and when I am at a dance always dances with me, but he has never tried to make a date since. I am always happier when I am with this other fellow than I am when I am with my "steady."

I am invited to a party next week and would like to know if it would be all right for me to go.

The Editor.

Tractors Set for Big Series Over Memorial Day Holiday

QUAKERS PROCURE FAST PITCHER FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

BROKAW AT FUNERAL. "Hal" Brokaw, tractor right fielder, received word that his mother-in-law died Friday morning at her home in Kansas City. He left immediately. This will necessitate a change in the line. Shook will probably go in the field and Hornbush will catch.

When the Whitewater Quakers, one of the latest semi-pro teams in the state this year, walk onto the diamond at the fair grounds here Saturday afternoon in the first of the two game series, they will have one of Chicago's best pitchers in the box. This is the dope that Ferring has been told.

Inasmuch as the Quakers are so fast that they held the Tractors to 2 to 1 in 10 innings a little more than a week ago, local fans are promised a diamond at the fair grounds here Saturday afternoon in the first of the two game series, they will have one of Chicago's best pitchers in the box. This is the dope that Ferring has been told.

Janesville plays two games on Monday. They will play Fort Sheridan here at 3:45 Memorial day afternoon. Lathrop taking the mound against the soldiers. At the evening they will appear at Evansville against the service men. The Evansville fair board is going to give the inhabitants of that burg two games of baseball every month for the rest of the summer. They have procured the Tractors for Decoration day because "their standing is well known and they are well liked not only because they have always showed themselves to be fair and good losers, if they lost." Walsh will very likely pitch in the morning.

They will play at the fair grounds Friday morning from the Moose, 25 to 5. They are set for a repetition. At the same time the Billiards, despite an 8-6 defeat at the hands of the Bulls are set to take a little of the glory out of the Casers.

Wednesday night the Eagles failed to show up at the diamond to play the Moose. In accordance with the rules of the league the game was forfeited thereby to the Moose, 9 to 0. The Moose put in the evening at practice, choosing sides.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, the Bulls and the Bakers are due to battle it out. The Bakers hold a forfeit victory over the Eagles.

ARROW GOLF IS NEW SPORT

Durham, N. H.—Arrow golf, a new game, is being played at the New Hampshire college. It is played with bow and arrow instead of club and ball and targets of straw sacks are used to mark what in golf would be holes. The faculty have taken to it in a body and play daily over a nine target course. Undergraduates also have adopted the game.

Over the hills and through woodlands in the vicinity of the college the arrows are sped without need to consider ground conditions that would be hazardous in real golf. Yet the game has qualities that make it highly competitive, with factors of strength and skill involved to a degree that maintains interest.

Arrow golf was invented in Durham by Professor W. C. O'Kane and has been developed by a group of other faculty members into the game which can be enjoyed on any farm or in the vacant lot of suburbs.

Tractors Travel 2 Weeks Starting With June 4-5

Following the four week-end games here this week, the Tractors will go on a tour of the fair grounds here to Chicago and other Illinois cities, including Springfield, capital of the Prairie state. The first jaunt will find them matched against the Chicago Normal in the Windy City on June 4 and 5.

Then they will take a run up to Pulmyra, Wis., to play their fifth game against the Whitewater Quakers at the old settlers picnic to be held at that place. The outing, which has been an annual affair for the past 20 years, should draw hundreds of people from this section of the state. The game will be on June 9.

On June 11 and 12, the locals will invade Springfield to play the Sangamo Electric of the Central Industrial league. On the way down, they will probably stop and play an Illinois town on the tenth. On the return they will not doubt put in a few other games.

On June 13, the Tractors' crew will appear at Whitewater against the Quakers at the farmer's picnic. The locals are great favorites up there where they are drawing big crowds.

There will come a resumption of the home schedule. That will come on June 15 and 16. The team that will probably come here will be the Nebraska Indians. Manager Ferring has sent a scout out there to look the "First Americans" over, declaring that while the club may look good out there they might not here and he wants to be absolutely positive of their ability before bringing them on.

This schedule, according to Ferring, is in accordance with the promise early in the week to shake things up to give the fans better teams.

EVERS SAYS CUBS WILL KEEP IT UP

Johnny Evers, who is driving the Cubs along at a brisk pace, is optimistic over the future of the team.

"We have had a lot of hard luck this spring," he said recently, "but I think we have done well, and ought to do better later on. Killefer broke his right wrist during our stay at Pasadena. Alexander injured his pitching arm on the opening day of the season, and neither Tughran nor Tyler is ready to pitch in good form. But he boys are hustling and fighting."

With no thought of being depressed, Evers has been in the first division practically since the start of the season and we mean to stay there. I am not claiming the pennant this year, but I'm prepared to state that we'll give a real battle to any one who is. The Cubs will finish higher than most of the experts picked them to finish prior to the opening of the campaign. Any team that will try as hard as my team is trying is bound to win a lot of games."

BELOIT WOMAN IS SEEKING GROUP TO TOUR YELLOWSTONE

"Nature has a show on in Yellowstone." "It is safe to say that only 10 people out of every hundred ever travel to see the scenic wonders that God made with the intent of having them seen," declares Mrs. Ella M. Rhoades, Beloit, who for 12 years has escorted people through the western national parks.

That is something that cannot be understood. Why don't more people take advantage of seeing our parks, our mountains, glaciers and places of beauty? There is no better vacation and on seeing Yellowstone every person comes home a better American, a better citizen. Why? Because he has more pride in his nation. He sees things he did not believe existed.

An attempt is to be made to organize escorted tours among people in Janesville, Beloit and Rockford. Three tours are planned by people from districts adjacent to these three cities, the first starting July 2 through Yellowstone and lasting 14 days; the second, a 10 day trip through Yellowstone, and starting July 20, and the third, a 13 through Glacier and Yellowstone parks.

There were 20,000 people who visited Yellowstone last year, according to Mrs. Rhoades, an authority on the national parks.

RECIPES

Brown Bread—One and one-half cups brown sugar, two cups graham flour, two cups white flour, one-half cup molasses, two cups sour milk (or buttermilk), one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon soda. Mix these ingredients and turn into two buttered bread pans, and bake in a slow oven three-quarters of an hour or until well browned. This is a very simple way of making brown bread, a splendid way of using sour milk, and it makes a delightful change from the plain white bread.

Scallion Salad—Remove skin and bones from scallions and mix with equal amount of mashed yolks of hard-boiled eggs. Arrange on lettuce and serve with mayonnaise. Save the whites of the hard-boiled eggs, and with a couple more eggs serve creamed eggs next day for breakfast or luncheon. This mayonnaise recipe is splendid and economical, for it makes double the amount usually made with one cup of oil. Mix yolks of two eggs, one cup of oil, two tablespoons vinegar, one tablespoon mustard, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, two tablespoons lemon juice and paprika.

Then beat one tablespoon butter or oil, add to this two rounded tablespoons flour and a cup of boiling water. When this mixture is very thick, add it to the other part and beat with a wire eggbeater five minutes, or until stiff. Unless the second part is very thick the mayonnaise will not become stiff upon beating.

Asparagus Soup—So that you may not feel extravagant in buying asparagus this time of year, save the water in which you have cooked the tips. Wash the stalks, usually thrown out, and cook in this same water, adding a little onion, for 30 minutes, and put it through a sieve. This makes a very thick cream sauce, and if you add the asparagus mixture. Usually, if you have two cups of asparagus, use two tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour and two cups of scalded milk to make the cream sauce.

Janesville School Days Started in Log Building in Spring Brook in 1838

By ISABELLA McCULLOCH.

In the fall of 1835 the first log cabin in the vicinity of Janesville was built opposite the "big rock." These early settlers were soon joined by others. On Jan. 15, 1836, Henry J. James made his claim where the city of Janesville now stands. In July, 1841, Janesville had between 70 and 80 inhabitants, two stores, ten buildings and two taverns.

These early settlers were eastern people, who believed that education is necessary for good citizenship. So they built a log school house on the bank of the river in the part of the city now known as Spring Brook and here William Brown taught a few children in the winter of 1838-39.

In the summer of 1840 a log school house was built in the woods near Main street about three rods north of Milwaukee street. Miss Cornelia Sheldon was the first teacher. The following winter the Rev. G. W. Lawrence taught the school. According to a census of Janesville taken in 1842 there were 75 school children in the village.

Errect Two Brick Schools.
During 1844 two brick school houses were built, one of which was on Division street near East Milwaukee street. The other was on the lot erected by the public. In the fall another schoolhouse was built on Eastern avenue. It was painted red and was thereafter known as "the little red schoolhouse." The other brick schoolhouse was built on Franklin street near West Bluff street. The school in this building was discontinued in the spring of 1850.

Academy Built.
In 1843 a charter was granted to A. Hyatt Smith, E. V. White, J. B. Doe and others to establish an academy in Janesville. A stone building 25 X 55 feet was erected on High street near Milwaukee street where the Lincoln building is now located. Here a school was opened in 1844 with Rev. Thomas A. Reger as principal. (Another account gives the date of the opening of the academy about Jan. 1, 1846.) In the summer of 1853 the city purchased the property as a site for a central or high school. It was used as a public school until the present Lincoln building was erected in 1876.

Janesville maintained her district schools for nearly 10 years under her village charter. In 1853, when Janesville became an incorporated city, there were 800 school children. May 21, 1853, James Sutherland was appointed superintendent of schools, which position he held until December, 1854. In 1855, Mr. Sutherland was elected by the city council as school commissioner from the first ward.

New System Adopted.
In April, 1855, the present system of schools was adopted. But it was not in practical operation until 1856, when the schools were carefully graded into high school, grammar, intermediate and primary departments. At this time there were the high school department located in the academy building, eight schools of lower grade and three private schools. The school buildings belonging to the city for the year 1858-57 were two new schoolhouses in the Second and Fifth wards, three school buildings in the First and Third wards, and the high school building.

$8,000 School in 1857.
In March 1857 the school commissioners presented plans to the council for a ward building. It was located in the first ward, the cost of which would be about $6,000. The First Ward committee appointed by the board of education in March 1859 reported that the teachers of the first ward departments were anxious for a new and suitable building.

In September of the same year the school board directed that "all pupils of the first ward belonging in the primary department residing north of Milwaukee street and east of Academy street go to the school held in the brick school house. All pupils living north of Center street on the west side of the river, who belong in the intermediate department, also those belonging in the primary department residing between Center and Milwaukee streets will attend school in the old academy."

In the spring of 1860 the first ward examining committee, S. A. Hudson, W. B. Hawes, James Sutherland and Josiah Wright, reported "these schools are entitled to better accommodations. The academy building is entirely insufficient for the number of pupils. A good ward building is very much needed."

At this time the first ward pupils were attending the "white school" house at the northwest corner of Racine and Pearl streets, the old brick schoolhouse on Franklin street near West Bluff street and the old Academy building on High street. At the close of the second term of the school year 1859-60 the school in the old

FANS' MEMORIAL TO EDDIE GRANT TO BE UNVEILED

The memorial.

A granite slab with a bronze memorial tablet has been erected at the Polo grounds, a tribute from fans in general to Eddie Grant, former big league player who died while leading his force to the aid of Whittlesby's lost battalion. It is to be dedicated Memorial Day. Baseball fans, writers and army and navy men contributed to the fund for the tablet.

brick schoolhouse on Franklin street was discontinued and the pupils transferred to the academy. The "white schoolhouse" was built of wood and too small by half for the attendance. "Ceiling low, furniture inappropriate and the entire arrangement such as to be destructive to the health and comfort of the pupils." The first ward intermediate school was also crowded during the year 1859-60. The building was described as "unfit, small, cold and ill ventilated."

Principal's Salary $450.
Warren D. Parker, a graduate of the high school class of 1859, was principal of the first ward schools, 1860-62. He was engaged at an annual salary of $450. In April, 1864, the matter of a new building was brought before the council.

"The city has gone to great expense in erecting schoolhouses, perhaps more than it can afford. Yet the first ward seems to have been unfortunate in the arrangement. A good brick schoolhouse is due that ward and should be erected as soon as circumstances allow."

At last on August 23, 1868, a notice appeared in The Gazette asking for bids for the construction of the first ward schoolhouse, the building to be completed by Aug. 29, 1869.

Formally Opened 1870.
The formal opening of the new first ward building took place on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22, 1870. This assembly room on the second floor and filled to overflowing by citizens of the ward and invited guests. The exercises opened with prayer and selections from the scriptures by the Rev. Dr. Whiting, pastor of the Congregational church. Addresses were delivered by Prof. Whitford of Milton college, Alexander Graham, H. C. Comstock and Col. C. W. McIntire. A number of these present made brief remarks expressing pleasure at the opening of the building. L. F. Fulton, president of the board of education, spoke briefly. The exercises were closed by the quartet singing, "The American Flag."

The building thus dedicated was described as a two story brick structure, 23 X 62 feet, with a front projection, 30 X 30 feet, built to accommodate about 300 pupils, costing when complete about $19,000. About two years later a fence was built around the school grounds.

Christened "Washington."
In 1868 the school board decided to enlarge the building by adding two rooms on the west side, thus making it an eight room school building. In 1869, when the school board decided to name the school buildings, the first ward school was designated as the Washington school. Plans were called for and the school children. According to the erection of the Grant building was begun in 1901. The cost was not to exceed $5000, exclusive of the heating and furniture. It was hoped the erection of this building would obviate the necessity for so many children crossing the railroad tracks.

During 1859-60, the number of pupils enrolled in the first ward schools was 386. At the present time there are 300 pupils enrolled at the Washington building and 120 at the Grant. In 1858, the date of the first charter, there were 1500 children crossing the railroad tracks.

last census, there are now about 4200, of whom 902 are in the first ward district.

Many Played "Hokey."
From a report of a teachers meeting appearing in The Gazette in Sept. 1888, it appeared that the attendance problem was troubling the school authorities. At this meeting H. W. Collins, one of the school commissioners, spoke of the low percentage of attendance at the first ward schools. One of the teachers replied that "he had been engaged in pulling in sawdust."

The following is a partial list of the principals of the early first ward schools and the present Washington building, beginning in 1858: Abner C. Fish, Warren D. Parker, Mrs. J. A. Wintemute and the Misses Jennie Metcalf, Gertrude Zeisinger, Elizabeth Morris, Margaret Patterson and E. Lenore Casford. Miss Catherine Creighton is principal of the Grant school.

According to the survey of the city schools published in 1918: The Washington building is regarded as absolutely by the state architect. There is need of a new building and the parents hope to obtain it in the near future.

The principals of the Grant school to date are: Miss Grace Kirk, Alice Whitton, Agnes Joyce Luby and E. Lenore Casford and Miss Catherine Creighton.

"Just get a whiff of this Adlon cigar!"

"Delightful, isn't it, George?"

"Adlon aroma originates from a rare blending of rich Havana filler and fine Sumatra wrapper tobaccos. Do you know how the Adlon blend was created?"

"No, George; let me in on the secret."

"Well, sir, I've learned many things about Adlon that are new in my experience in handling cigars; and I started as an apprentice at a cigar-maker's bench when I was in my teens!"

"I've found out, for instance, that some 500 tests were made of all sorts of tobaccos before the makers of Adlon selected the distinctive blend they wanted for Adlon.

"Also that they studied the tobacco-taste of thousands of particular cigar-smokers."

"Well, that's getting into things rather deeply, George."

"It is! Notice, too, you can enjoy Adlon as far down as you can retain a finger-hold."

"Why, George?"

"Because there are no bitter 'gums' at the mouth-end of Adlon to impair its taste: These 'gums' are present in all leaf tobaccos. But their effect is destroyed in Adlon and you get nothing but smoke-enjoyment from end to end. It's one of the worth-while cares taken to make Adlon your cigar."

"You'll agree with me, sir, that Adlon is the most satisfying, full-bodied, mild cigar you ever smoked."

You can get Adlon—the best cigar you can buy—from any good dealer.

Veterinarians Aren't Worried by Popularity of Autos and Tractors

Is the veterinarian worried by the rapid advance of the automobile and tractor? No, emphatically. On the contrary, "Business is better than ever before," says Dr. R. L. Brown, Janesville's oldest veterinarian, while admitting that the automobile and tractor are having a deteriorating effect upon the country's horse population. "Modernized farm methods are responsible for the increase in work among cattle, hogs and sheep," much more extensive than years ago. I inoculated close to 5,000 hogs last year and made upwards of 2,000 tuberculin tests of cattle. This is where the increase in the veterinarian's business comes. It was not long ago that farmers themselves as well as 'quacks' could inoculate hogs but now this is all done away with and all this work must be done by a recognized veterinarian. The farmers can still use the serum for hog cholera but the virus must be administered by us.

"Tuberculin testing has become so general the past few years that it is keeping the veterinarians busy. In contrast to the old conditions when there were no restrictions on the shipping of cattle, there are now laws to prevent interstate shipments of animals that have not had the tuberculin test. Within the state, farmers can still make shipments of non-tested cattle but even this is gradually being done away with because there are but few buyers today who will buy anything but tested animals. While doctoring of horses has decreased some in the past 10 years, these new regulations on cattle and hogs have increased the practice of veterinarians to more than offset the loss."

Dr. Brown is today the pioneer veterinarian of Janesville, having been in practice here for more than a quarter of a century. He graduated from the Chicago Veterinary college in 1896 and completed his 25th year of practice in Rock county last month. He probably knows more farmers in this county than any other person.

He drove horses for years but disposed of them early in the era of motor cars. It would be next to impossible nowadays, he says, for a veterinarian to do much without a car. He can now make three or four calls in an afternoon where before it used to take him from two to three days. "There are, of course, fewer horses in the cities," said Dr. Brown, "but in the country there still seem to be about as many although there are fewer colts being bred. Most of the farmers still have their work teams although they may have disposed of their others to buy automobiles."

There are still a number of horses in the cities that require attention. Dr. Brown cares for all the horses of the local cavalry troop, the Janesville delivery company and the one remaining livery stable. In addition he attends to horses owned by milk, fuel and ice companies.

"Veterinary science," he said, "is now recognized as a profession as much on the same plane as that of physicians. It now requires a four-year course in a special school to be a registered veterinarian and the man who takes it up must realize that his work is practically as important as that of a physician. A veterinarian feels the loss of a 'patient' just the same as a physician does."

In his 25 years practice in Rock county, Dr. Brown has treated practically every disease and injury known to cattle, horses, hogs, sheep, dogs and cats. He has treated cattle for tuberculosis, fever and cowpox—diseases for everything from glanders and influenza to strangles and horsepox—and hogs for the great scourge of cholera. He has clipped the tails and ears of hundreds of puppies treated dogs for distemper, and has gladdened the hearts of feline lovers by restoring the health of their pets.

Performs Many Operations
Hundreds of operations on all kinds of domesticated animals have been performed by Dr. Brown.

"The surgeons with their beautiful operating rooms, equipment and nurses to aid them have it easy compared to what the veterinarian goes through with," he said. "He has to go out in unsanitary places, struggle with the animal to get him securely tied, administer his own anesthetic and take care of him after the operation. Of course we have what we call hospitals but the majority of times we have to operate in an ordinary stable."

"Yes, we used to give whiskey to our patients as a stimulant to the heart—that was when it was 50 cents a pint. We don't any more. We use strychnine in most cases."

Horses Hard to Treat
"The horse is the hardest animal of all to operate on—he will not remain quiet. A dog with a broken leg in a cast will not walk with it until it is knitted together but a horse is just as apt to walk on his broken leg as the rest of his limbs. That is why it is almost always necessary to kill a horse when he breaks a leg."

One of the most noteworthy features of modern veterinary work, Dr. Brown said, is found in the manufacture and use of various vaccines and antitoxins. In this respect, human medicine has no more important or valuable scientific results to show. A vaccination method has been perfected whereby black leg in cattle is reduced to less than one per cent. An equally successful method has been devised for prevention of anthrax and more recently a method of vaccination has been perfected for the prevention of tuberculosis among cattle and other domestic animals. The use of the blood of recovered cattle has been found to be a successful means of immunizing cattle against Texas fever.

ALBANY

(By Gazette Correspondent.)

Albany.—Will Zimmerman is in the Janesville hospital ill with blood poisoning as a result of a small scratch. He cut his leg with the tin badge on one of his potato sacks while sorting the potatoes less than a week ago and Wednesday a Janesville doctor was called here and took Mr. Zimmerman back with him.—Mr. and Mrs. Mike Lewis have welcomed a baby son, their first born, to their home.—Fred Ruchford, Madison, spent Wednesday in this city with relatives.—Myrtle Jones lost a valuable horse recently, the animal dying in front of the Condensery plant after being driven in with a load of milk.—D. J. Frye, who had a severe attack of heart trouble while working in his barnyard Tuesday is able to be out.—The Albany Canning company is shipping out the last of the 1920 crop of peas to a Louisville, Ky., wholesale firm. Other years canning factories were sold out and their warehouses cleaned by the last of the year, but 1920 saw contracts "jumped" to such an extent that the canners were left "holding the bag" with many cases of goods on their floors. The prospects for this year are encouraging.

NOTICE

The People of Janesville and vicinity are cordially invited to attend the Annual Iris Exhibit of the Beloit Nurseries, to be held Saturday and Sunday, May 28th and 29th, at which time all visitors will receive our entire attention. The flowers on display will make a sight worth going miles to see. Location of Nurseries, one mile south of Beloit on the Janesville and Rockford Interurban Line.

WHEN HARDING PRESENTED MME. CURIE WITH GRAM OF RADIUM FROM U. S. WOMEN

Mme. Curie, on arm of President Harding, descending White House steps after the ceremony. Mrs. Harding, in white, is on the steps above the president.

President Harding has made many presentation speeches since he entered the White House, but what was perhaps the most impressive one was that which gave to Mme. Marie Curie, discoverer of radium, a gram of the precious element as a gift from the American women. The gram is to be used by Mme. Curie for experimental purposes, partly in the interest of curing cancer. After the president had presented the gram to Mme. Curie the party descended the White House steps to have their pictures taken. The photo was snapped as they descended the steps to the lawn.
